

FFORDE UPGRADE ALERT

It has come to our attention that the entire first print run of the UK Hodder edition of First Among Sequels is missing the footnoterphone speech. These should be on pages 194, 195, 332, 333, 339, 392 and 393. Even though I'd like to claim it's an obscure Nextian joke that requires a brain the size of Jupiter to understand, it isn't. It's a balls-up of the highest magnitude for which I and my publishers apologise profusely. So to make amends we have spared every expense to bring you this cut-out-and-paste do-it-yourself-too-many-hyphens-in-this-sentence erratum slip.

1: 'Goodness! Already?' 2: 'This is really awkward. Jobsworth just called - he's overjoyed that you're taking Thursday and said that if we do a really good job, he would give Jurisdiction's extra funding his especial attention.'	194
3: 'Bundles, old girl. Do this as a favour to old Bradders, eh? Just until the end of the day.'	195
4: 'ffffffgghuhfdffffffgggooonpicUp..passlccccwww?' 5: 'kkkkcar45kAR45%%%%bloody hellfire!>>>>>>sodding jjjjjjjjj Bureaucrats even out here+eeee'	332
6: ' jjjjjjjahagssffffffssss- Is anyone out there? all I dddddd can see is endless BLEEDING ocean-////////'	333
7: 'Thursday! Great Scott girl! Where are you?' 8: 'Wouldn't it be better to go via 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea and hang a left at Robinson Crusoe?' 9: 'Not good. Can you get up to the CofG straight away?' 10: 'Good luck, old girl. You'll need it. Where are you now?' 11: 'Not a thing. I'm under house arrest. You're all alone on this one, Thursday. Best of British and all that.'	339
12: 'Prego! Il Gatto del Cheshire?' 13: 'Sorry - just practising for my holidays in Brindisi this year. What can I do for you?' 14: 'Sure. Say, did you order a textual sieve lockdown on The Eyre Affair?' 15: 'Well, you've got one. Mesh is set to ultra-fine and time-locked - not even a full stop is going to get out of that book for at least twenty minutes.'	392
16: 'No problemo, Outlander Amiga. Do you want me to keep you company?' 17: 'Prego! Il Gatto del Cheshire?'	393
